The Attorneys at Pyrros & Serres LLP Workers' Compensation: Carpal Tunnel Syndrome

Does Carpal Tunnel Syndrome Qualify for Workers' Compensation?

Do you perform a lot of repetitive tasks at work?

No matter what your occupation, repeating the same motions over and over again can cause stress injuries, like carpal tunnel syndrome, to develop over time. This injury causes workers to experience pain, numbness and tingling in their wrists, hands, and fingers.

Fortunately, carpal tunnel syndrome is covered by workers' compensation!

Carpal Tunnel Syndrome Commonly Affects:

Office Workers
Factory Workers
Truck Drivers
Bus Drivers
Construction Workers

If you have developed carpal tunnel syndrome as part of a workplace activity, it is important that you submit your paperwork for workers' compensation early on. Since carpal tunnel syndrome often takes time to develop, many workers receive workers compensation benefits through reimbursement of medical bills and time spent out of work.

Our attorneys will work with you to make sure that your paperwork is filed properly and that you receive the compensation needed for your medical treatment.

Not sure if your case qualifies for workers' compensation? Give our office a call!
Our attorneys are experienced in all aspects of workers' compensation law. We can provide you with legal assistance and advice that will help you get the medical care and compensation you are entitled to.
