HIRING A WORKERS' COMPENSATION ATTORNEY

Hurt on the job? Don't worry - we're here to help!

There are laws in place that are designed to protect you while you are out of work. With the help of an experienced attorney, you can receive workers' compensation benefits that cover lost wages and medical bills.

Here are a few times you'll want to hire an experienced workers' compensation lawyer.

When to Hire a Workers' Compensation Attorney:

1. Your Employer Denies Your Claim -

If your employer denies your workers' compensation claim, you are allowed to request a hearing with the NYS Workers' Compensation Board. Hiring a workers' compensation attorney is your best chance at receiving benefits for your injuries and lost time from work.

2. Even If Your Employer Accepts Your Claim, You Should File a Claim with the NYS Workers' Compensation Board

The only way to ensure that you receive the maximum amount of money for your claim and to protect your right to current and future medical treatment is to have your claim established by the Workers' Compensation Board. When a hearing is scheduled for your case, you will want an experienced lawyer by your side.

3. Your Medical Issues Are Keeping You From Returning to Work

If you have suffered an injury that keeps you from returning to work, you may be entitled to compensation that makes up for your lost wages. A workers' compensation attorney can help you make sure that you get the compensation you are entitled to.

4. You May Be Entitled To A Lump Sum of Money For Your Work Related Injury

In some cases, you may be awarded a lump sum of money for your work related injuries. This award can be in addition to the money that you may receive while you are out of work. Insurance carriers will rarely offer this to you voluntarily. You should consult with an experienced workers' compensation lawyer to evaluate your claim and to fight for all of the benefits that you are entitled to.

Our attorneys can walk you through the process, keep you informed about possible pitfalls and give you honest input on your case.
